

SCOPE's Education Forum

Editor: Cindy Pierce Lee

The Voice of Long Island Education is a tabloid style newspaper. Regular features include school district news, profiles of Long Islanders, honors and promotions, exemplary school practices and national or state events with strong focal impact.

Published five times a school year, it provides information of interest to the entire education community of Long Island. 46,000 copies of each issue of Forum are distributed at no cost to:

- School Board members in both Nassau and Suffolk
- Every School superintendent in Suffolk and Nassau
- Principals in Suffolk and Nassau including private and parochial schools
- Classroom teachers and support staff in Suffolk and Nassau
- Key College and University Administrators on Long Island
- Numerous parents, local businesses, elected officials and members of the press and media

SCOPE's Education Forum readers are a choice selective audience. They shop for quality goods and services, for themselves, their families, and sometimes for their schools and classrooms. They plan vacations and travel often; they plan for their future and their children's future; they save and they invest. They are an audience you want to reach.
