Long Island’s newest public school leaders joined their seasoned colleagues during SCOPE’S 32nd Annual Dinner Meeting for Superintendents and School Board members, held at St. John’s University Oakdale campus. The event provided the opportunity for newly appointed superintendents and school board trustees to share ideas with fellow educators across Nassau and Suffolk counties.

SCOPE Executive Director George Duffy urged those in attendance to utilize the many organizations associated with SCOPE and noted that developing the minds of students is an educator’s most important job.

“The children we educate today are the leaders of tomorrow,” said Duffy.

New York State Commissioner of Education MaryEllen Elia was the guest speaker and addressed the changes and ongoing reviews of the Common Core Learning Standards, state curriculum, student assessments and teacher evaluations. Elia said she believes that “assessments have a role in education and can work as an important tool to educate our children.” She noted that the state is working to be more transparent by releasing 75 percent of the assessment questions and by providing a parent-friendly assessment report. The commissioner also addressed teacher evaluations, which she said are now being reviewed by educators in a greater effort to help teachers move forward.

New York State Regent Roger Tilles presented his views on the demographic and geographic issues resulting in gaps in education and graduation rates.

“Districts are asked to overcome issues that often exist beyond our schools,” said Tilles. “During my visits to high-need districts, I have noticed that what brings students to school are the programs we often cut from schools, and I hope we can turn that around.”
The New York State Education Department has approved SCOPE’s Continuing Teacher and Leader Education program for online, in-service professional development. An SED spokesperson noted that the program structure is completely in line with SED goals and will serve as a model for others to emulate.

For the fall program, a total of 71 courses were offered, with 68 courses offered online. Some of the courses included:

- Identifying & Prevention of Teenage Addiction, which focuses on how to identify various physiological and psychological addictions in students, recognize the potential dispositions, examine the causes, explore effective prevention strategies and initiate appropriate intervention techniques.

- Totally Twitter, which explores what a mainstream social media platform has to do with education.

- Multiculturalism in the K-12 Classroom, which focuses on what educators need to know to promote success in students who enter Long Island schools from foreign countries and need to assimilate into a very different culture.

- Spanish in Our Classrooms, in which participants learn letter writing, phone call language, simple lessons in Spanish, and explore the cultural issues that promote a better understanding of ELL students and their families.

- Oppositional Defiance Disorder – Strategies for Teachers and Parents (K-12), which addresses the need to provide a better understanding and valuable tools that can be utilized by teachers in general education classes dealing with new students with diverse needs.

- Defining Dyslexia & the Orton Gillingham Reading Methodology K-12, which familiarizes course participants with the definition, causes, symptoms and early detection of dyslexia, the most common reading disability. Reading and spelling techniques and programs that remediate students of all ages were discussed.

SCOPE continues to give back to the communities and school districts we serve. Last year, $500 scholarships were awarded to deserving recipients in SCOPE member districts, resulting in more than $47,000 in scholarships awarded. In addition, $1,000 scholarships were donated to both the Nassau and Suffolk County superintendent associations scholarship programs. SCOPE looks forward to presenting these scholarships again in 2017. Congratulations to all recipients!

SCOPE also provides scholarships to families in need to enable their children to attend various SCOPE programs and classes. No child is ever denied entrance to a SCOPE program as a result of financial need.

As always, The Forum includes interesting information submitted by school districts, including new appointments and promotions. Congratulations to all new administrators and school staff, and best wishes for much success in their respective positions. As always, I wish each of you a very productive, successful and safe 2016-17 school year.

Warmest regards,

George L. Duffy

Outstanding Programs Where Children Flourish

EXEMPLARY PROGRAMS – APRIL 2016

East Moriches – Three-Year-Old Pre-K Class: The first thing noticed when entering Ms. McIntyre and Ms. Ramos’ classroom is that the three-year-olds in this room were consistently focused, engaged and very calm. It was obvious the children felt safe and comfortable in their classroom with their peers and teachers. They were happily chatting with each other while playing, sharing and taking turns. The ease of these interactions is one indication that they were ready for the next step. These children looked forward to moving up to the four-year-old UPK program and it was apparent that they were ready. Thank you Ms. McIntyre and Ms. Ramos.

Eastport-South Manor – Eastport Elementary PM Program: Supervisor Colleen Franco, assistant Kelly Cupolo and program aide Patricia Denaro worked daily to provide activities that were engaging and enjoyable. Activities were created that stimulated curiosity and allowed the children to express themselves in positive and constructive ways. What was most impressive at Eastport Elementary was the level of respectful interactions between the staff and children. As a result of these encouraging and supportive ways of communication, positive relationships were always evident at this site and spilled over to interactions witnessed between staff and parents as well.

Mineola – Jackson Avenue PM Program: The supervisor and assistant have worked together at this program since 2004. The students in the Jackson Avenue after-school childcare program looked forward to participating in the creative activities developed by the staff within an encouraging and supportive environment. As a result of this positive and welcoming climate, the children eagerly arrived each day and frequently made comments that indicated that they did not want to leave. A huge thanks to supervisor Janice Bienemann, assistant supervisor Lynn Clifford, and support staff Roxanne Deas and Michael Giordano.

EXEMPLARY PROGRAMS – MAY 2016

Commack – Sawmill After-School Program: Supervisor Meryl Eisenberg, assistant Ariana Bisulca, and support staff Lori Brucculieri, Kathleen Kelly, Kristine Mangone, Sheila Penaofsky, Deborah Santoro and Lina Seeliger all contributed towards making this quite an inviting after-school childcare program. The leadership was caring and supportive. Patience and respect best describe the manner in which the children were treated in this program. In response to the orderliness, consistency and fairness evident in the operation of this program, Sawmill parents often made it a point to compliment the staff and let them know how much they appreciated their respectful and patient interactions with the children.

Wantagh – Mandalay PM Program: The staff at this program provided opportunities for as many teachable moments as possible. To support this goal, the interactions between the staff and children were consistently respectful, thoughtful and encouraging. Supervisor Maureen Carroll, assistant supervisor Vanessa Posey, and support staff Barbara Edwards and Samantha Manfra worked diligently to provide the children with enjoyable, challenging and engaging activities often centered on themes such as Beach Day. In addition to these on-site activities, each year the children enjoy a field trip to the local park. It was clear that the staff at the Mandalay after-school childcare program were dedicated to the children in their care.

East Meadow – Bowling Green Three-Year-Old Pre-K Program: The focus in Ms. Hyland and Ms. Feeney’s classroom has been on active learning. The children learned to recognize and identify other children and adults and initiated ways to communicate with each other. Ms. Hyland stressed the need for the children to use their words, whether for conflict resolution or just asking for what they would like. The progress that this class made throughout the year was astounding. Their growth was evident in the way they practiced for their moving-up ceremony and they were thoroughly ready to perform their songs and hand movements. Ms. Hyland and Ms. Feeney succeeded in creating a warm and inviting classroom where these three-year-olds flourished. Thanks to Ms. Hyland and Ms. Feeney for all of their efforts.

Sayville – Lincoln AM Program: The Lincoln AM childcare program eased the children into their day with a minimum degree of stress and a maximum degree of preparedness. The staff was consistently observed engaging with the children while they played games or completed a craft. Supervisor Jennifer Remheld and assistant Meghan Manginelli, with support staff Laura Attanasio and Samantha Lonieski, exceeded expectations when greeting children and parents with a welcoming smile. The staff worked hard to plan holiday parties throughout the year, and these celebrations became focal points for learning activities and social interaction opportunities. Every visit to the Lincoln Avenue Elementary School proved to be a pleasurable experience.

West Hempstead – Cornwell PM Program: Every SCOPE child and parent was routinely greeted with a smile upon entering the Cornwell Avenue PM SCOPE program in West Hempstead. Supervisor Cynthia Baquero led her group with an energetic spirit and delighted in organizing fun activities, including holiday parties and talent shows. These enjoyable and engaging programs, coupled with a welcoming attitude, created an environment that proved to be supportive and positive. A very sincere thank-you goes to Ms. Baquero and assistant supervisor Maria Toscano.

EXEMPLARY PROGRAMS – JUNE 2016

East Meadow – Parkway PM Program: The Parkway after-school childcare staff was involved in creating, administering and supervising fun art projects and/or exciting outdoor games, which the children thoroughly enjoyed. Supervisor Janine Traina displayed an upbeat and positive attitude and led her team with a high level of enthusiasm. Parents instinctively knew their children were in good hands with this staff and appreciated the level and extent of positive interactions that took place on a daily basis. A genuine thank-you to Ms. Traina, assistant supervisor Hannah KO-Fernandez, and childcare aides Justine Redd and Amanda Bohl.

Hauppauge – Pines PM Program: Supervisor Lisa D’Eloia, assistant Maria Casucci, and support staff, Julia Dunn and Kelly Herzberg made it their mission to provide a safe after-school childcare program that was known as a place that children did not want to leave. Aligned with this effort, much care went into the creation of activities that were attractive and engaging and offered children opportunities to thrive and grow. The earmark of this program was the approachability of the staff, particularly when dealing with children in problem-solving situations. All challenges were handled constructively and the caring rapport between the school, staff, children and parents was evident. Positive communication and open dialogue between the staff and children characterized this program. Congratulations to the staff and the children for a job well done.

Valley Stream UFSD Thirteen – Howell PM Program: The after-school childcare program at the Howell Road School provided the children with a safe and nurturing environment where they could explore their creativity through craft activities cleverly designed by the staff. During every visit, the children were eager to share their latest creations, including holiday ornaments and bracelets, and were very proud of their work. Supervisor Annie Rogers, assistant Jennifer Jacoby, and support staff Rose Marie Kelly and Jheannell Fraser guided the children through a structured schedule every day. The focus was safety first, followed by enjoyable experiences.

West Babylon – JFK Pre-K Program: The children in this program had a wonderful time in one of SCOPE’S newest programs. The school district and parents have welcomed our program with open arms. Ms. Perretta and Ms. Fudjinski have been able to collaborate with the kindergarten teachers to help make the transition to kindergarten go smoothly. These children were introduced to sign language and Spanish and were able to be a part of the school’s art show. This level of collaboration bodes well for a smooth transition into the district’s kindergarten program. Congratulations, Ms. Perretta and Ms. Fudjinski!
